Study Room Policy	3/10/2026

Purpose:

West Georgia Regional Library System (“WGRLS”) provides study room spaces as a service to the community for use by individuals or groups to promote growth, lifelong learning, and access.

Policy:

The general policies and procedures for the use of the study rooms in libraries in WGRLS are within the jurisdiction of the West Georgia Regional Library System Board. Study room users are subject to all library policies, including the Code of Conduct Policy. Each library in the system may establish study room regulations that fit the needs of that library and community, including, but not limited to study room capacity, time limits, and reservation options, as long as they are not in conflict with the regional policy. A library may revoke the use of a study room for violations of policies and study room regulations and to refuse use of a study room for prior violations.

The responsibility for implementing the study room policy rests with the member library manager in charge of the building or their designated representative.
